IMPORTANT INFORMATION CONCERNING YOUR BALANCE RESERVE

We figure the interest charge on your overdraft by applying the daily periodic rate to the product of the "average daily balance" of your account (including current transactions) times the number of days in the billing cycle. To get the "average daily balance," we take the beginning balance of your account each day, add any new advances and subtract any payments or credits, and any unpaid interest charges and late charges. This gives us the daily balance. Then, we add up all the daily balances for the billing cycle and divide by the number of days in the billing cycle. This gives us the "average daily balance." You can verify the interest charge by multiplying the "average daily balance" by the number of days in the billing cycle and applying the daily periodic rate to that product.

Any Overdraft balance followed by "Cr" means that the balance is a credit balance.

Payments received at any branch by 3:00 p.m. on a banking day will be posted to your account on the same day. Payments received after those times, or on a non-banking day, will be posted no later than the following banking day.
